Dear [REDACTED]

I must confess having mixed emotions about the status of my suggestion. I am pleased that it has not been rejected, yet perplexed as to why some positive indication has not been made about the current possibility of making it a reality. With that in mind, and as a way to more graphically show one view of my enclosed courtyard concept, I asked an artist friend in the Agency to render a drawing that would provide some visual appreciation to my previously written description of the idea. There are several physical layouts that would work; this is but one view. It is attached, and will, I hope, provide those who are considering the idea with a better base from which to make their decision about the suggestion.
